BALKAN AFFAIRS.

A CITY ON FIRE.

Reuter's
[Service to the "Telegraph."]
London, Received July 14.

It is officially announced in Athens that prior to evacuating Serres the Bulgarians set fire to the city, nearly the whole of which was destroyed, rendering 20,000 out of a population of 37,000 homeless.

Naval Activities.
A Bulgarian gunboat and six torpedo boats have taken refuge in Sevastopol from the Roumanian Fleet.

King Ferdinand.
King Ferdinand is reported to have taken to his bed in Sofia, suffering from acute rheumatism.

Atrocities Denied.
The stories of Bulgarian atrocities are flatly denied in Sofia, where similar counter-charges are made against the Serbians and the Greeks. An international enquiry is suggested.

Poor Bulgaria!

London, Received July 15.

Both States—Serbia and Greece—seem hardening their hearts against any treating with Bulgaria except upon the battlefield. The causes of the Bulgarian collapse are much discussed. They are ascribed primarily to contempt for the enemy, disbelief in the capacity of the Greeks and Serbians for vigorous aggression, divided councils, an excess of untrained troops, and a scarcity of officers.

Turkish Plans.
It remains to be seen whether the plans attributed in Constantinople to the Turkish Government of again taking possession of Thrace and thrusting Bulgaria back to the old frontier will be carried out, Bulgaria being incapable at present of offering serious resistance.

Serious Allegations.
Reuter's correspondent at Salonika states that a Greek journalist sends sensational accounts of the Bulgarian proceedings at Serres. He alleges that they pillaged the whole town before burning it, not even sparing the Austrian Consulate, despite the representations of the Consul, who was wearing official uniform. The Austrian Consul's wife's jewels were stolen, and the Italian Consulate only escaped through the Consul paying ransom.

The Turkish Advance.
Reuter's correspondent at Constantinople states that the Turkish armies from Chatalja and Bulair have made forced marches, and already the troops have reached Odrin without meeting opposition.

The Bulgarians have evacuated Rodosto, devastating the villages in the route of their retreat.

The Roumanians have already occupied Dobrich and Balchik to the eastward, and are reported to be at Rustchuk and Korabia upon the Danube.

New Aspirations.
It appears certain that the Greeks and Serbians intend to make the Bulgarian excesses an important factor in the ultimate settlement. Semi-official statements declare that Serbian and Greek subjects cannot be allowed to be again exposed to the tender mercies of any Bulgarian administration whatever. This points to a considerable enlargement of Greece-Serbian aspirations for territory.

Premiers to Confer.

Later.
M. Venizelos, the Greek Premier, has gone to Nish there to confer with M. Pasic, the Serbian Premier.

Military Activity.
There is great military activity in Constantinople, where there are constant arrivals of troops, artillery and provision convoys from Asia Minor.

BANDMANN OPERA COMPANY.

Brilliant Production of "The Girl in the Taxi."

The Bandmann Opera Company reached what was probably its highest point of excellence during the present season, last night, when, to a crowded house, "The Girl in the Taxi" was presented. Many among the audience had seen the play before, and these, as well as those who were introduced to its attractions and fascinations for the first time, went away at the final fall of the curtain delighted at the performance and loud in their praises at the capabilities of those taking part. The principal parts were admirably allotted.

The character of Baron Dauvray, the giddy old singer who assumes, if he does not possess, all the virtues under the sun, was entrusted to Mr. Fred Coyne; and a more happy interpretation of the part could not be desired. He undoubtedly upheld the high reputation which he has won in the East as a most versatile and polished actor. Mr. Thomas Pannocost was seen in the role of Hufert, the Baron's son, and the manner in which he portrayed the innocent young man's first steps of gay life was in every sense admirable. Mr. James McGrath, too, had a part which suited him to a nicety in that of Lient. Rene; while Mr. Gouriet, as the scent manufacturer with a passion for military service, came through with flying colours. Mr. Frith in the character of a head waiter was simply irresistible. Of the ladies, Miss Moyna Hill claimed premier honours as the vivacious young wife who posed as a model of propriety and innocence; she was daintiness itself. The work of Miss Marjorie Cecil and Miss Violet Frampton was also of a very high order, and a word must also be said of the capital performance of Miss Ena Meyer.

The play overflows with entrancing music and teems with sparkling dialogue; and all the members of the Company combined splendidly to bring out its attractiveness. A word must be written of the dressing of the piece, which was remarkably fine, especially in the second act. In this connection the stage management of Mr. Coyne deserves mention. Mr. Coyne is an old hand at this work, and the effects which he was able to secure on a stage with the limitations of that at the Theatre Royal were really wonderful. This, indeed, was one of the outstanding features of the presentation of the piece, and it reflected the greatest possible credit on Mr. Coyne's abilities in this direction.

To-night the Company winds up its season with a grand vaudeville entertainment.

HOME RULE.

BILL BEFORE LORDS.

Reuter's
[Service to the "Telegraph."]
London, Received July 15.

In the House of Lords, the Earl of Crewe, moved the second reading of the Home Rule Bill under the Parliament Act. He dwelt on the plea for a conference, to which, he said, there had been no response by the Opposition leaders.

Lord Crewe said the Government never pretended that the present Bill was the only kind of Home Rule Bill the House ought to be asked to consider, but so long as an Irish minority, supported by the Unionists, declared that it would resist anything to prevent the constitution of any kind of Irish legislature, there was no basis for a conference and it only remained to pass the Bill under the Parliament Act.

Lord Lansdowne moved that the House of Lords decline to consider the Bill until it has been submitted to the country. He said nothing had happened to change their Lordships' views that the by-elections had not augured favourably for the Bill. He quoted from the organ of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who would call the tune, to show that Ulster's terms were justified. The Opposition urged the reference of the Bill to the country. If the Government won the Bill would still remain under the Parliament Act. If they lost, they would be saved from a stupendous blunder. "We are ready to abide by the country's decision," declared Lord Lansdowne.

"SPECTATOR" ON EMIGRATION.

A writer in the "Spectator" says some shrewd and pertinent things regarding the present panic created by the tide of colonial emigration. While admitting the serious depletion of Scotland, he points out that a very different condition applies to England, where we have an enormous increase in the urban population. Whatever is true of Scotland, in England and Wales emigration has not yet overtaken the natural increase in the population. Taking London as a typical example, this writer points out that the population of Greater London has increased by close upon a million within two years, and it is still growing. Thus, in the week ending May 17th there 2,347 births in Greater London, as against 1,590 deaths. This means that in spite of the alleged declining birth-rate, there is an excess of 750 births over deaths in Greater London alone, and the same is true of nearly all the large towns. It comes to this, therefore, that instead of fearing emigration, the question we have to face in England is how to deal with the tremendous growth of our urban population.

The population of England and Wales has been increasing by leaps and bounds since the beginning of the nineteenth century, and the increase has never been greater than during the first decade of the twentieth century. The moral is, don't worry about emigration. There is no need awaiting our people in Canada and Australia, and it is important that these dominions should be peopled by Britons. By all means try and solve the problem of getting people to return to the untilled acres of England, but the fact remains that if every one of these cores were under cultivation by as many people as it could support, we should still fail to overtake the present growth of our urban population.

BORROWING-NOTE CASE.

Collusion between Defendants and Plaintiff Alleged.

This morning in the Summary Court, before Mr. Justice Kemp, He Shun sued Ma Ching Nam and Ma Tun Shing, claiming the sum of $609, principal and interest, said to be due on a Chinese borrowing note dated May 9, 1913, made by the defendants in favour of the plaintiff.

Mr. R. C. Faithfull appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Otto Kong Sing for the defendants.

Mr. Kong Sing said that he was afraid that he would have to ask his Lordship to grant an adjournment as his two clients were not there. The two defendants, he said, were brothers and one of them was an infant. On Friday last he asked his Lordship to fix a day, and his clerk informed him afterwards that as a matter of fact he did not have any instructions; that the defendants were out of the Colony. The infant was the owner of certain property bought in his name by the executor of the will of his deceased father and he had been going round obtaining money, or doing such notions as he thought his Lordship would find were collusive acts with different people to whom he had given these charges. He thought that in the circumstances an adjournment ought to be granted. Steps were being taken to have the equitable charges expunged from the register.

His Lordship asked if the claim was on borrowing notes, and Mr. Kong Sing replied that it was.

His Lordship:—You allege collusion between the second defendant and the plaintiff?

Mr. Kong Sing:—Between the defendants and the plaintiff. It is done in order to extract money from the executor so that he will release the property. If he gets judgment it will mean another prohibitory order on the property.

Mr. Faithfull opposed the application. The men ought to be there to meet the case. He had had great difficulty in serving them at all. Mr. Kong Sing ought to have seen that his clients were there.

His Lordship decided that the case would have to go on, but at a later stage an adjournment was granted to Mr. Kong Sing.

DYING DOCTOR'S DIARY.

Record of A Struggle with Disease.

At the request on the body of Dr. Dabbs, the following statement, which was found written on a sheet of paper headed "My case," was read:—

June 7.—Come up to see—Must rest. Want some good professional advice. Very ill.

6 p.m., June 7.—Got some more chloroform from—It is safer for me than morphia, which I have not touched.

Saturday, 8.50.—A kind friend has given me a little dinner. I was only there an hour and five minutes. Her kindness ought not to be rewarded by her name being mentioned if, as seems probable, my trouble comes on in the night. I did not say I should remain in London to-night, nor shall I if I feel fit to go, but I am not fit now.

Sunday, June 8.—Bad night. Oh, the humiliations of disease! Shall keep quiet all day, and die like a stag if I may be alone. I have avoided morphia hitherto, but the pain is too much, and chloroform is like milk to me. I do not want to live. The world is so full of light, and life, and interest. I shall die if I feel fit to go, but I am not fit now.

The Coroner said that by the bedside was found some very interesting writing, apparently the last, which seemed to read:—"Be kind to Simpson (his partner). I am dying. Thank you for all your kindness. To be continued in my next." On another piece of paper was written:—

"Be kind to my partner. I am pressing. Can I keep awake till they find me—they find me—they find me? I must."

Dr. R. S. Trevor said that death was due to angina pectoris, and was probably accelerated by the inhalation of chloroform. Angina pectoris caused intense pain in the left arm, and it was most difficult to alleviate. In treating him with chloroform, Dr. Dabbs was doing what he might have prescribed for a patient.

The jury returned a verdict of "Death by misadventure."

Harbour Scheme for Neath.

A large scheme is under consideration by the Neath Harbour Commissioners for converting the Neath River into a floating harbour capable of docking some of the largest vessels afloat. It is proposed to construct locks about 1,000 ft. long by 100 ft. wide at the river entrance at Bilton Ferry on the west side of the river, while the eastern bank will be dammed and a by-wash constructed on the west of the locks to carry off the overflow. The total area involved in the scheme is 180,000 acres.

AMERICAN TOURISTS.

Their Treatment in Japan.

The "Oriental Review" contains an outspoken leader on the question which is causing so much concern on the Pacific coast:—

The "Asahi" (the "Morning Sun") the leading independent newspaper of Japan, in a recent editorial people in which it discusses the newest attempt of certain people in California to make that State ridiculous, said, and should not have said:—"This anti-Japanese agitation will impress us with a keen sense of humiliation which will require many years to efface. Americans must be prepared for a cool reception when they come to Japan as tourists or settlers." What nonsense! The Japanese are neither children nor fools, as the "Asahi" very well knows. Because some people in California attempt to do a stupid thing the really sensible Japanese will certainly not emulate them, either directly or indirectly. Sane Americans regard this California agitation with disgust. There can be no doubt that sane Japanese do also, and have an equal comprehension of the underlying motive. The California legislature may pass the Bill objected to, and Governor Johnson may sign it, but the Supreme Court will have the last say. By this time Japan should understand that outbreaks of demagoguery in Sacramento against her subjects are not to be taken tragically. That is the sum and substance of the matter, and the "Asahi" surely should recognise that there is no tragedy in it at all—only farce.

A BANK CLERK'S ERROR.

A series of heavy financial disasters, culminating in destitution and suicide, were narrated at a Leeds inquest recently. The jury found that William Copping, aged 66, had committed suicide by drowning. The evidence of his son-in-law, Edward Lightfoot, showed that Mr. Copping was formerly in business as Messrs. Copping, Copping, and Sons, corn millers, of Srinagar, Leeds.

"The business was prosperous," continued Mr. Lightfoot, "until 17 or 18 years ago, when a bank clerk's mistake destroyed the firm's credit. A cheque was dishonoured owing to the error of the clerk, and Mr. Copping lost about £40,000 in one day in consequence of the shaken credit of the firm. The clerk was dismissed, but this, of course, did not restore the credit of the firm, whose business dwindled away to nothing."

"Mr. Copping's father died of a broken heart, and when Mr. Copping's wife died he was left destitute."

Old Welsh Castle Found.

The excavations which have been proceeding at Prestatyn, Flintshire, have resulted in the discovery of the site of Prestatyn Castle. It has been supposed for a long time that this ancient castle, built by Robert Banastre in 1164, was nothing more than an earthwork. The walls of the castle proved to be almost entire, and one section revealed good masonry 4 ft. thick, at a height of 18 in. above the former ground level and a rougher masonry of 18 in. below the ground level.

Payment of Chinese Legislators.
The world would have thought the more highly of the Republican movement in China had the members of the two Houses of Parliament shown the strength of their convictions by gratuitous public service until such time as the finances of the country had been put upon a sound footing, enabling this heavy charge upon the Treasury to be borne without embarrassment. But that is too much to expect. The patriot in China, with but very few exceptions, estimates the value of his patriotism in ounces of silver. We had an instance of it in Canton recently when the late Governor-General, on the eve of relinquishing the office, ordered the repayment of gifts made by "patriots" to the Revolutionary funds, with interest at the rate of 50 per cent. added—at a time of great financial stress, too. The resolution of the Senate, that members of the two Houses of Parliament should be paid $6,000 a year each, belongs to the same category.

Water Supply Problems.

In another part of his address, Mr C. E. Smith ventured a plea for greater co-operation in experimental work, pointing out very truly that an immense amount of research work is carried out by engineers of which no record is ever published. For this we think there are two reasons. In the first place, engineers who have taken a considerable risk in introducing innovations in established practice are often prone to consider the data thereby obtained as a personal asset. We ("Engineering") remember, for instance, a case in which considerable difficulty was encountered in sealing off from a well certain undesirable waters encountered in strata above the chalk. Ultimately this was very successfully accomplished by growing, using neat cement as a grout; but the engineer responsible said quite frankly, when asked for details, that he did not wish to give away useful knowledge to others. In many cases, however, publication is objected to because the experiments in question have been carried out with improvised plant in a rough and ready way.

The Land Company and its Critics
The widely different nature of the respective operations of the two companies cannot be so apparent to the shareholders at Home as they are to those in the colony, otherwise the proposal to amalgamate, with consequences which are so well set out in the letter published yesterday, would never have been made. Supposing the Land Company embarked on one or other of the big schemes of reclamation at the risk of holding the land unoccupied for years, heavy interest would have to be paid on money borrowed to enable the work to be carried out, the dividend would suffer consequently and the feeling of Home shareholders, some of them possibly depending upon returns from their investments for a livelihood in their retirement, may be better imagined than described. However the correspondence has served an excellent purpose. It has wakened up local companies to the fact that Home shareholders who are "unable to attend meetings and express their views" are not without the means of doing so.

Flight with a Pelican.

The adjudication of the prizes is in the hands of Sir William Bailey, President of the Manchester Shakespeare Society.

The King's Piper.

The shadow of the fateful Derby was over the King's dinner to the members of the Jockey Club, and the classic race was the last subject anyone was inclined to talk about. An innovation was the appearance at dessert of the King's piper, who walked round the table, as in the Highland fashion, taking up his position after the orthodox "three times round" behind the chair of His Majesty for a moment before leaving the room. The King is evidently partial to the pipes, as the strains of the Scottish national music may be heard on most mornings round about Buckingham Palace.

Religious Procession Interrupted.
A public procession in honour of the Blessed Virgin, in which were borne a statue of the Infant Saviour and a figure of the Virgin Mary, left St. Ignatius, the Roman Catholic Church on Stamford Hill, and traversed a number of thoroughfares in the neighbourhood. The police had taken special precautions against disorder, but at one point a spectator left the crowd and, referring to the image of the Blessed Virgin, cried out, "What heresy is this?" He was pounced upon by Roman Catholic spectators, who heartily belaboured him. The man retaliated, and in full view of the processionists a fight ensued. Eventually matters calmed down and the interrupter took his departure.

French Birthrate.

Paris, June 17.—The French vital statistics for 1912 which are published to-day show a slight improvement compared with the statistics of 1911. The excess of births over deaths in 1912 was, roughly speaking, 58,000, compared with an excess of deaths over births in 1911 of 30,000. The actual increase of births, however, is only 8,500, while the decrease in the number of deaths reaches the high figure of 84,000. Increasing facilities for divorce have brought about an increase in the marriage rate, which, however, has not been accompanied by any proportionate growth in the birth rate. The marriages last year reached a total of 212,000, and the divorces granted numbered 14,500.—(The Times.)

Prince of Wales in Camp.
The Prince of Wales, who is one of Magdalen College Company of Oxford University Officers Training Corps, was present in camp with his corps beside Mytchett Lake, near Farnborough. His Royal Highness paraded with the remainder of the Corps, about 1,000 in all, and travelled by train to Bradfield College, where the contingent where billeted in the cricket pavilion and the gymnasium. On the Sunday afternoon a detachment, including the Prince of Wales, marched from Bradfield to Mortimer, and at sunrise on Monday a start was made for Farnborough. Under the hot sun the 17-mile march was sufficient of itself to try any but trained troops, but included in march was a scheme of operations in which the cavalry and infantry combined to force a passage to their camp against the Regular Squadrons of the 5th Dragoons. The Prince of Wales, who marched the whole way with his company, shared in the ordinary duties and parades.

THE SOTTO CASE.

Mr P.M. Hodgson, continuing his address to the Bench in the Sotto case, after we had gone to press yesterday, said that the Philippines were under the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, and he did not see that it made any difference whether all of the revised statutes had been extended to the Philippines or not. Nor did it matter, he would submit, whether full citizenship of the United States had been granted to the Philippines or not, nor did it matter whether the Philippine Islands had yet been admitted to statehood or not; they were territory nevertheless under the full sovereignty and dominion of the United States, and under no other sovereignty. They were within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, and he would remind his Worship that we, ourselves, this Government, had recognised the fact that there is extradition to and from the Philippine Islands.

Mr. Branton:—This is most impossible; there is no evidence of it.

Mr. Reader Harris:—It has been referred to already.

Mr. Hodgson:—No, there is no evidence of it.

Mr. Branton:—It is exactly what your Worship has to try in this case, as to whether there is or not.

Mr. Hodgson then cited cases which, he said, on perusal by his Worship, would be found to substantiate his contention that there was and did exist, extradition between this Government and America, and that the extradition applied, in all its fullness, to the Philippine Islands.

The case was adjourned.

A SHIP OF ALL TRADES.

The Future of the Submarine.

The destroyer is doomed shortly to disappear, or, if you like, she will in future be invested with the power to dive. The types, at any rate, will be amalgamated. It is a matter of perfecting the internal-combustion engine for marine purposes. Afterwards—who knows?—the submarine may attain the power of flying as well and we shall have a ship possessing all the qualities of the wild duck, except that of sitting on eggs and reproducing herself. This forecast is made by Gerard Pienne, who writes thrillingly of the work of the submarine in the June "Pall Mall Magazine."

The Attack.

It is the darkest hour, the hour before the dawn. The hostile fleet lies in its harbour, behind the boom and under the shelter of the forts. It has suffered damage in an encounter with a superior force, but is still "in being." The beams of the searchlights wheel and cross and sea-saw up and down; the guarding destroyers prowl hither and thither in the outer harbour.

Of a sudden there is a rush from seaward of black hulls and flaming funnels. No concealment is attempted; it would be useless. The attackers creep unperceived, near enough to make their rush. In an instant the scene is ablaze with quick-firing guns, hurling shells on friend and foe alike. The assailants hold on. One boat after another sinks, but ever fresh squadrons rush in to the attack. A dozen, twenty, thirty boats will be well lost if the attempt succeeds.

The Boom Breaks.

The boom which protects the harbour mouth is made of huge baulks of timber, wound and bound with stout steel bays. From its lower edge hang torpedo-nets. It would be vain to charge it as the Polyphemus years ago charged the boom at Portsmouth for an experiment, and got over. It must be blown up. A rending crash, followed by another, proclaims the failure of the trusted defence. The boom is in splinters; the destroyers which wrecked it actually make their way to safety amid the smoke and confusion caused by the explosions.

Now the fast-breaking dawn discloses a number of slim poles cutting the surface to the water. Again the crash of the fire breaks out. It is futile but the nerves of the gunners will not stand inaction. The defending destroyers charge the submarines, trying to knock away their periscopes to explode mines close to their hulls. Here and there they succeed. A whale-like snout is thrown out of the water, and sinks again for ever.

Aeroplanes at Work.

There is a whirl of wings overhead. The aeroplanes are up. Soon fountains of water are spouting from where their dropped bombs explode. But, above all the din, there arises a dull muffled roar—a second, a third. Some of the battle-ships are hit. One torpedo which missed its mark destroys the caisson of the dock in which the flag-ship is lying for repairs.

Worst of all, the fleet has lost its sense of security. It must go out and fight at any cost. What the fresh ships were designed to do in the old wars, and seldom did, the submarine can accomplish—at least if she justifies the hopes of those who believe in her.

THE DYSENTERY EPIDEMIC.

How to Avoid It, and How to Fortify the System if Attacked.

The gravity of dysentery, which is often so rapidly fatal, cannot be exaggerated. Hence this article, which is published in the best interests of the community.

While at the first onset of diarrhoea everyone should consult his doctor, that the disease may be nipped in the bud, he should remember that the same treatment which will build up his strength to overcome the disease will also prevent him getting it.

Dysentery is eminently a question of nutrition. Hence, a food which is easily assimilated and entirely absorbed from the stomach is the first requisite. Of such foods, none can compare with Sanatogen, of which The British Medical Journal states: "Sanatogen is the best of Aids Digestion—Prevents Indigestion.

O.T.

O.T. is a true digestive, and really does what liqueurs are supposed to do, namely, Aid Digestion. It is the only liqueur in the world without alcohol, and thus is most suitable for ladies and those averse to spirituous drinks. As a preventive and remedy for indigestion, O.T. is favourably known to thousands of people in all countries.

A Stimulant as Satisfactory as Alcohol

A Liqueur—Stomachic—Pick-me-up.

Made from natural fruits and herbs O.T. is a pure and healthful beverage, and only favourable effects follow its use. After over-indulgence there's no better "pick-me-up." As a tonic when you feel "out-of-sorts," there's nothing better to make you fit and well again.

O.T. is a true digestive, and therefore good as a mealtime drink, as an after-dinner liqueur, and as a remedy for indigestion, flatulence and "full feeling" after meals.

As a stomachic, it has wonderful virtues for colic, dysentery, and other stomach troubles. No drink is more suitable than O.T. for both abstemious and non-abstemious; none is more healthful for young and old.

HONGKONG, TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1913.

OVERCROWDED HONGKONG.

The Hongkong Blue Book Report for 1912 contains some instructive statements and figures, and none more so than those under the heading of "Vital Statistics." Sub-section B. of this chapter remarks that there has been great activity in regard to building operations to meet the urgent demands for house-room created by the immigration of some forty to fifty thousand Chinese who poured into Hongkong during 1911; and it goes on to say, cheerfully enough, "Pending the erection of sufficient dwellings for the accommodation of so large an increase, the existing dwellings became greatly overcrowded, but any very strict enforcement of the overcrowding laws was deemed impossible," adding, in the same breath, that the penalty to be paid for this overcrowding was a severe outbreak of plague, no less than 1,847 cases being recorded! There is an innocence, a guilelessness, about this admission that would make it funny enough for "Punch," but that there is such a terrible reverse side to the joke. Translated into plain English the words can only be taken to mean that, in order to find room for some, where about fifty thousand fugitives—whether from justice or from injustice—those in control of sanitary matters here were willing to expose the rightful tenants of the Colony to bubonic plague, small-pox, cholera, or any other "visitation" that might come in the wake of these good folk from Kwangtung, Kwangai and Fokien.

Now Hongkong is not so poorly off, either for revenue or for population, that she need open her gates to every stranger from China and tell him that she will make room for him by driving some one else into a corner. We have only a limited number of magistrates, police and prison-cells for the lawbreakers, or of doctors and hospital-wards for the sick; in face of which, we stand by calmly while crime and disease are rendered more and ever more likely by the increase of our population to the extent of more than ten per cent! If anything like a rational or competent Government were in power at Home, what would the Colonial Office have to say to all this? In so many words, by allowing immigration and overcrowding to this extent (and we are judging the Government according to its own admissions) the authorities are saying to the inhabitants of Hongkong, native and European alike, "We must ask you to put up with a little overcrowding and a good deal of risk, in order to suit the convenience of a mere forty or fifty thousand aliens."

And this was only during 1912. What about the present day? Every week in the year many hundreds of strangers from China are swarming into the Colony "without by your leave or with your leave"—beggars, cripples, persons covered with horrible diseases, thieves, procurers, coiners, and every other type of undesirable; all of whom have heard what a heavenly place Hongkong is for getting their perspiration, and what inexpressible fools we Britishers are; how easily gulled, and how very tender towards the lawbreaker. And still they come, and will continue to come unless the Government wakes up. If we must tolerate this steady and systematic invasion, why not at least insist on all newcomers remaining on Kowloon side? Surely Hongkong is full enough already. What are we doing but asking for plague or other epidemics when we allow the Chinese to live in these crowded tenements? The police reported, at the time of the Taipingshan collapse, that there were 165 persons living in the two houses that fell. (By some strange method of calculation, the number had dropped to 128 when the inquest took place a fortnight or so later!) The Government may well say that "any very strict enforcement of the overcrowding laws" was waived. The death-rate for 1912 among the Chinese was 26.33 per thousand, as against 21.13 the previous year. The wonder is that it was not more, for the persons dwelling in these over-crowded houses frequently use the public cars and rickshaws—to say nothing of the seats on Blake Pier and in the Botanical Gardens—and so are liable to assist the spreading of disease wherever they go; while the very amahs, and the boys who work in European houses or offices come, from just such houses; (it is not long since one of our readers informed us that his wife had discovered that the amah whom she had engaged for her children was suffering from a loathsome skin disease.) Even were sanitary conditions ideal here, and even though the population to the square rod were a reasonable one, doctors would have all their work out to keep disease at bay in such a part of the world as this. Yet, not content with the amount of sickness that must needs be, we throw open our Colony for the physical and moral riff-raff of China to come and settle here at their own sweet will.

Chinese Matches.

Chinese "safety" matches are of two sorts—good, and dangerous; and we are of opinion that the Government might well put a stop to the latter's being retailed in the Colony. We allude to the thin-stemmed articles sold in boxes bearing only Chinese characters. The user of these risks burning his clothes, blinding himself, and setting the whole place on fire. Europeans who have been "let in" by these ones, usually give them a wide berth; but they are in constant use among the natives, and have doubtless been responsible for more than one fire. Good matches are cheap enough, in all conscience; then why allow the market to be flooded with rubbish that is not only dangerous but useless as well? Such matches, falling into the hands of European smokers, have been the cause of more "cuss words" than we should like to have on our consciences; for you strike six and get no light, and the seventh will, as likely as not, send a spark of saltpetre into your own eye or someone else's.

"Peace or Civil War."

Under the above heading we quoted, yesterday, some remarks made by Sir Henry Blake on the subject of Home Rule. Our ex-Governor seems to take an unduly grey view of the position of affairs in Ireland, and evidently has distant visions of an invasion of that distressful country by Orangemen from Canada and the States. In our opinion, Sir Henry is disquieting himself in vain. In the first place, the British Government may have something to say on the subject of such invasion; and, in the second, the days have gone by when a man leaves his business and his own country to take a hand in other people's political or religious squabbles. Politically—in Liverpool and the North of Ireland—the Orangemen are still tolerably strong, but, as a serious religious body they exist mainly on paper; for nobody nowadays really believes that the Pope and the Devil are the same person, or that every Catholic carries a Rome-granted licence to assassinate the King, and can be as infamous as he chooses if he likes to square his priest with an occasional half-crown.

The Bathing Places.

It is a source of peculiar pleasure to us that there are already ample evidences of the success of the bathing places scheme which the Tramway Co. has initiated at North Point, thereby showing the Government what it should have done, but what it has not accomplished for lack of courage and enterprise. The "Telegraph" always felt that the provision of public bathing places would meet a long felt need; and the success of the Tramway Company's undertaking has amply proved it. There is one little matter, however, which might be improved upon, and that is the ventilation of the tents. At present they are uncomfortably hot for bathers. They could be made better if the top were so constructed that it consisted of a canvas flap which could be thrown back when there was no rain. We throw out the hint solely with a view to yet further improving on an enterprise which the Tramway Company is to be congratulated upon initiating.

Statue Square.

We made brief reference yesterday in our Day by Day column to the unkempt appearance of Statue Square, and more especially to the weed-grown condition of the ground surrounding some of the monuments. But that is not the worst of the matter, and if a sanitary inspector would take a walk around some of the Royal statues he would realise what we mean. It is nothing short of abominable that the present state of affairs should be permitted to continue; but it does, despite the fact that only last week a resident gave the authorities a lesson by arresting a Chinese guilty of a decided insult to loyal Britishers. What is needed is that the statues should be enclosed by fences of some kind. Statue Square, often spoken of as the gateway to the city, should be a pride to the Colony, but in its present state it is a disgrace. We hope the authorities will see to it that in future all cause for complaint shall be removed.

There was not a single arrest in the West Point district yesterday, and Inspector Dymond had only a few small summons cases to bring to the notice of the Bench.

Colony's Health.

But for the twelve cases of plague last week, the return of communicable diseases was very low. There was one fatal occurrence of puerperal fever and one non-fatal case of diphtheria, both Chinese.

The Plague Epidemic.

During last week there were twelve cases of plague notified in the Colony, all proving fatal. In the 48 hours ended at noon yesterday there were three other occurrences reported, two ending in death. This brings the year's total to 207, with 200 deaths.

Victoria Theatre.

The regular change of programmes, three times a week, at the Victoria Theatre is being greatly appreciated by its patrons, and is a move which does credit to the enterprising spirit of the management. There was quite a good house last night, in spite of other attractions, and the display of pictures was a most excellent one. The two Australian artists, Miss Olga Montez and Miss Kitty Raynor, still maintain their popularity, and are performing again to-night, when there will be another entire change of programme.

Another man, similarly charged, was fined $15, or, in default, one month.

TYPHOON WARNING.

The following telegram was received by the American Consul-General, Hongkong, from the Manila Observatory at 10.45 a.m. to-day:—

Manila, July 14, 10 a.m.—Cyclone or Typhoon, near or over South-eastern Luzon, moving W. N.W.

The London Museum.

The London Museum, which has been closed to the public since Easter, will not be re-opened until after its removal to Stafford House. The museum was closed as a precautionary measure in view of the activities of the militant suffragists. The object was to protect both Kensington Palace and some valuable exhibits lent to the museum which an evil-disposed person could damage irreparably in a few moments. It is expected that Stafford House will be handed over to the museum authorities some time this month. Until then the date of the removal of the museum cannot be definitely fixed.

JOTTINGS BY THE WAY.

A Manila contemporary comes out with a huge headline, "Watson's well has 688 feet." Watson's well beats all previous records; yet we thought we had struck the limit when a centipede explored our left arm.

If the young man from Tooting who hastened with his feet to the music of "The Geisha" at the theatre on Saturday, will call at this office, we shall be pleased to set him up with a rattle or a pair of castanets.

A correspondent remarks that our recent leader on "What China Reads" displays our—well, not quite make out whether it's "benighted" or "blighted"—ignorance. He assures us that there is constant demand among the boys of the Ellis Kadoorie College for Paley's "Evidences." He also remarks that the Chinese students at another of our local colleges have threatened a strike unless the English masters give up reading the "Pink'un" and the "Winning Post."

Renter sent us a wire the other day, "Scottish Temperance Bill again passed." The Scots were aye a stiff-necked generation; any other country on God's earth would have been satisfied for the Bill to have been passed once.

An orator in London has been saying that the Y.M.C.A. is an untold boon to young men. We rather think it is. Where else—in Hongkong—can the young men slip in, during the morning, for a quiet game of billiards without its coming to their taipans' knowledge? (We often meet such young men coming and going!) The lack of seclusion about the ordinary hotel billiard-room here is a perfect scandal.

The Bishop of Stepney opines that "to drink a lot to cure a thirst is a superstition. The best thing is an acid drop." Was that bishop ever in the East? The acid "drops"—whether sulphuric or hydrocyanic—retailed at some of the bars out here would give a Baobian camel a thirst.

We hear that the Government did not "back out" of its undertaking to erect bathing sheds on the beach. It was advised to "re-consider its decision" because it was reminded that all sorts of objectionable people from the Peak might monopolise the beach. We also learn that no one in receipt of an income exceeding $150 a month will be permitted to use the new golf links. The Government is to be congratulated on its public-spirited conduct.

The type-writer recently introduced into the police court for the purpose of taking down evidence has disappeared. One report says that the same light-fingered gentleman who walked off with the clock from the Supreme Court, while the judges were sitting, has borrowed it. A more feasible story is that a member of the Li family ordered its removal, as the use of a type-writer in Court was opposed to Chinese custom.

The Government Gazette has ordained that no flower-hawker shall have in his possession any Cypripedium Parviflorum, Enkianthus quinquefolius, Ilex chinensis or Mangifera Fordiana. (We hear that evening classes for Wyndham Street colonies, in Greek, Latin and botany are shortly to be opened—the expense to be borne by the Government out of the money saved on the bathing-sheds.)

The Duchess of Marlboro' has been telling a temperance gathering that the best cure for the drink habit is good chow. The point is debatable; we know men in Hongkong who wouldn't give a fig for benedictine or cognac at any other time than immediately after a big feed.

For over a week, so it is reported, the dust-boxes round about Glenalee have remained undisturbed all night. This reflects the very greatest credit on the vigilance and valour of the lakongs, some of whom have been recommended for the Distinguished Service Order.

A TALE OF TWO TRAVELLERS.

A Trip to Annam and Cambodia as by Told Themselves.

Chapter VII.

Angkor.

Note.—Angkor Wat: The name is said to be derived from the Sanskrit Nagara signifying capital. Early writers spell the word Nakhon, Norhor and Ongkor, but which is correct it is difficult to know; but Angkor seems to be the most popular way of spelling it at the present day.

Wat, or Vat, is a word signifying Temple but its origin is uncertain.

Another spelling Nakhikon. It may be interesting here to state what others have thought of these marvellous ruins.

1. Mrs. Loonowee thus speaks of it: "The Wat stands like a petrified dream of some Michael Angelo (what is a petrified dream?) more impressive in its loneliness, more elegant and animated in its grace, than ought Greece or Rome have left us."

2. Mr. J. Thomson F.R.G.S. (1866), referring to the above authorities, "We regret, however, to discover this authorities, when she describes the Cambodian ruins, falling into a number of grave errors which might, if they had been avoided had she studied my photographs more carefully when she did so the honour of selecting them to illustrate her work." Are we to infer from the above that Mr. T. thought the Lady had never visited the ruins, but written her book from what she had heard about them? Again the good lady says "her elephants pressed on heavily but almost noiselessly, over a parti coloured carpet of flowers." We, like Mr. T., saw an interminable forest but no carpet of flowers.

3. Monhet (1858) thus describes it: "One of these temples—a rival to that of Solomon and erected by some ancient Michael Angelo—might take an honourable place besides our most beautiful buildings. It is grander than anything left to us by Greece or Rome and presents a sad contrast to the state of barbarism in which the nation is now plunged."

Angkor Vat (Capital—Pagoda), is the best preserved Temple and possibly the most perfect in artistic merit and construction of those built during the Khmer Empire. After dejeuner on leaving the Bungalow and proceeding about 200 yards to the left we came to a raised stone platform surrounded with several stone lions rampant and approached by flights of side steps. This forms the commencement of the paved road or causeway spanning the moat which extends round the outer wall enclosing the temple. The moat is some 200 yards broad, the sides being faced with stone. The causeway is formed of stone flags varying in size but all closely fitted together without mortar. A portion of it has sunk, but otherwise it is intact. The parapet is in ruins, most of it having fallen, but what is left indicated that it represented the body of the Naga supported at short intervals by square stone pillars. Before us rose a long low building of dark grey stone, some ten feet above the level of the causeway. The entrance to the monument at the end of the causeway consisted of three porches with a pagoda-like tower over each; unfortunately they are all much damaged, but from what is left it is easy to see that the central one was the highest. In front of the entrance is a raised platform oval in shape which is reached from the causeway by three rows of stone steps. On each side of the central steps is a balustrade in the shape of the body of a serpent and at the end is the Naga, or seven-headed snake. This figure is most striking, carved in stone some 15 feet high. The entrance is a snake's head the surface being carved to represent a central snake supported on each side by three lesser ones. The reason we and this figure repeated so frequently in the ruins is on account of the veneration bestowed on it by Buddhists. "It guarded Gautama (the Lord Buddha) when he slept. Ngau (angus) appeared at his birth to wash him; number conversed with him here and there, protected him, and were converted by him, and after the coronation of his body an eighth portion of his relics was allotted to the custody of Nagas." (Translated by Dr. Eitel from the original Sanscrit.)

Corridors, as some call them, but as they are quite open on one side, cloister more aptly describes them, extend on both North and South sides of the main entrance running parallel to the moat, from which it is separated by some 30 yards. At the further ends of these cloisters are porches crowned by pagoda-like towers with double roofs, not acorn shaped like those on the main entrance. These porches were for the elephants and chariots to gain access to the interior of the monument, and deep grooves have been worn in the stones by these. The porches are continued on their outer sides by a stone 15 feet high, which has fallen in many places but is still traceable where it continues along with the moat on its outer side to form a large quadrangle with sides North and South of 800 metres and East and West of 1200 metres enclosing the whole of the monument. The exterior side of the cloisters are formed of a series of double square pillars supporting stone lintels, the capitals and bases being ornamented with a pattern distinctly Indian in style; on the outer side is a verandah. Here and there along the cloisters the space is contracted to form doorways separating one portion of the cloisters from another. The walls have ornamented friezes and wainscots. There are also a few statues all of which are damaged; one, a large figure of Vishnu, is in fair preservation. (To be continued to-morrow.)

THE S.S. HUE.

A Successful Trial Trip.

The Marty Company's s.s. Hue, which went aground off the Hainan coast some two months ago, is out of dock again and made a trial trip round the island on Sunday. Mr. Caldwell, of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Company, and Mr. Lambert, Lloyd's surveyor, were among those invited on board for the trip, which proved highly successful.

The Hue has undergone complete overhauling and renovation and looks as smart as a new yacht. About eighty new plates have been put in to replace those that were faulty or damaged; the engine shafts have been renewed, and two new propellers have been provided. She has always been known as a fast boat, her regulation speed being sixteen knots; and it is probable that this will be increased by means of the new propellers. She is now awaiting a few finishing touches and will resume her mail duties on the 17th of this month. The s.s. Hanoi, which has been doing her work while she was docked, has just been taken off the run. The owners express themselves well satisfied with the manner in which the repairs have been carried out by the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co. Ltd.

The little vessel is not without a historic interest. She was built twenty-five years ago at Newcastle by Messrs Hawthorn and Leslie, for the Chinese Government and employed as a despatch boat. During the troubles between the French and the Chinese, while she was carrying despatches, a shot was fired through her side and fell on the saloon table, the remains of which are still treasured as a valued relic. Some ten years ago she was bought by Messrs Marty, but until the recent granting of a subsidy to the line by the French Government, she was only used occasionally; and two years ago she was practically laid aside. When the subsidy was arranged, she went into dock—in January of the present year—a very considerable sum of money was laid out on her, and she was placed on her present run. She was only on her third trip to Haiphong when the accident took place.

EXPLOSION AT KAIFENG.

Terrible Destruction.

On July 2 we published a telegram reporting an explosion at Kaifeng arsenal. The special correspondent of the "North China Daily News" writes (July 2): Last night, about eleven o'clock, we were awakened by the most appalling explosion I ever heard. In our dazed condition we could not imagine what had happened. Bombardments, bombs thundering, what was it? Voices, excited shouting, inquiring, produced a babel of sounds, and everywhere lights were being carried to and from. While hastily dressing, we heard a crash in the house next to us. I ran across to find Dr. Carr, who was ill with fever, wandering amid the debris caused by the falling in of his ceiling. In both houses, doors had been burst open, the steel locks being snapped. Window glass was shattered, pictures flung to the ground, everything in confusion. The nurse, who was in attendance on Mrs. Carr and her two-day old baby, was awake at the time. She told us how the house had rocked to its foundation till she thought it must fall. The floor was apparently giving way, the movement being worse than any earthquake she had known. To the north dense volumes of smoke darkened the sky.

In the morning, an explanatory proclamation was published stating that the Arsenal and powder magazine has been blown up. On visiting the scene of the disaster, I found that a large hole was all that remained of the actual spot. Bricks had been flung hundreds of yards in all directions. The building had been blown to atoms. Mutilated remains of bodies were lying widely scattered over the plain, some were being gathered into coffins, others covered over with bedding, many, if not all, quite unrecognizable. Groups of women sat wailing on the ground. Soldiers were present to see that nothing of value was removed.

As far as I could make out from inquiry, about forty people had been killed. This includes the wife and family of the official in charge. Some believe it to be the work of some secret assassination society.

In the hospital here, nearly a mile distant from the scene of explosion, windows were smashed, clothing was blown out across the courtyard. Those who could escape from the building did so, others covered within, expecting death. One of the servants wandered about almost in a demented condition. Though much damage has been done, many have cause to be thankful at having escaped with their lives. Twenty miles away the thunder of the explosion was heard.

ADULTERATED MILK.

At a meeting of the Sanitary Board held this afternoon the results of the examinations of food under the Food and Drugs Ordinance 1896 for the quarter ending June 30, 1913, were submitted.

Dr. Fitzwilliams:—Will the Head of the Sanitary Department give the name of the vendors of the adulterated milk? It is my opinion that all such should be made public in order to stop the practice.

Mr. Chan Kai Ming:—I agree with Dr. Fitzwilliams that the name of the shop where the milk came from should be made public in English and Chinese. Analyses of milk should also be made as often as possible.

The Head of the Sanitary Department:—The deficiency in milk solids other than milk fat was about 4 per cent. The percentage of milk fats was above the requirements of the law. I think it would be unfair to make the name public.

Queen Mary, (Unveils Canadian Monument.

At Stoney Creek (Ontario), last month a monument was unveiled in commemoration of the British victory in the war of 1812. Fifteen thousand people were present. Queen Mary, in Buckingham Palace, pressed a button giving the signal for the unveiling. Many notable people were present. Weather was sent by officers and men of British regiments which participated in the engagement.

BRITISH ENGINEERS' ASSOCIATION.

Events in China.

The fifth provincial meeting of the British Engineers' Association was held in London on June 12. Mr. T. Outhbert Stewart was in the chair. Professor C. A. M. Smith, Dean of the Faculty of Engineering at the Hongkong University, was present.

The Chairman explained the aims and objects of the Association, and stated that every business man must realize that there was an enormous market in China. American and German manufacturers were making extraordinary efforts to capture the Chinese trade.

Captain Fitz Hugh first dealt with the progress of events in China, and pointed out how it was bound to become a huge market for engineering plant. During the last twelve years China has constructed 5,000 miles of railway, and soon there would be an enormous market for railway material. If the country continued to prosper, as he believed it would, it would need an efficient army and navy, and a market would be opened for munitions of war. If the present spathy in regard to Chinese trade continued, this country would find that her prestige would dwindle to a mere fraction of what it used to be. The British Engineers' Association had been recognized by the Foreign Office, and their members were now in a position to claim official support. Members could by collective action control the conditions of tendering both in the home, and foreign markets. In this way objectionable clauses could be successfully combated.

Professor Smith dealt more particularly with the technical educational problem. When he was sent out to China to take charge of and open the Engineering Department of that University, he was firmly convinced that British engineering interests were paramount in China. He was astounded to find that there was a general impression that British influence was on the wane, and more astonished still to find that British residents in China were not slow to admit that allegation. When they heard that the British Engineers' Association has been started they were enthusiastic at the idea of our manufacturing engineers becoming alive to the trade possibilities of the country. It was essential to our future success that the prestige of British engineering and machinery should be upheld in the eyes of the Chinese, and the Hongkong University, purely a British institution, though certain Chinese subscribed largely to the funds, was there to educate the Chinese engineer of the future on British lines, and now they had the British Engineers' Association to strengthen the business interests. These were the two great factors working side by side by which should do more than anything else to maintain British engineering prestige. They could rest assured that the Hongkong University would do its share, and the British Engineers' Association had already begun to bear a portion of the burden. It remained for British manufacturing engineers throughout the country to support the Association in a manner which would render it all powerful for the good of their industry.

Mr. James Downe said that the time was ripe for a combination like the British Engineers' Association, as without it we could not hope to capture our proper share of the Chinese market.
